

Gruber Logistics opens new office at Hanover airport

28. Juli 2010

The Italian forwarding and logistics company Gruber Logistics has always been active in the overland, maritime and airfreight sector. As a response to the steadily increasing volume of airfreight, demand and the development of the Iata cargo agency, the family managed firm has opened a new (airfreight) office at Hanover-Langenhagen airport (Germany). The new facility offers groupage shipments (Consols), as well as full and part-load charter services to all points of the compass. In addition Gruber provides door-to-door deliveries and Iata direct traffic from a single source. The experienced team in Hanover organises pre and post deliveries as well. The service portfolio encompasses packing, domestic and international customs clearance services, tracking and tracing, plus hazardous goods handling (including comprehensive documentation). Customers can particularly rely on Gruber's own airfreight warehouse.
